Clinton County Fair kicks off Monday

The 2014 edition of the annual Clinton County Fair is just days away and will feature six nights of main events as well as multiple programs that will have something for everyone to be entertained.

This year's fair format will be somewhat different in the area of program rotation. Usually, the fair begins with the annual beauty pageants, but this year, the first nightly event to kick-off will be the always popular Family Night, which has all kinds of events for all ages.

Monday night's program gets underway at 7 p.m., but will also include the Pet Show that will be held at 6 p.m. There will be a 3D Archery Tournament featuring 20 targets as well as Red Dragon Lazer Tag. Gate admission is only $1 per person.

Pageants will begin on Tuesday, June 17 with the Little Miss and Mister, Pre-Teen starting at 7 p.m. There will also be a Lawnmower Pull and once again, Lazer Tag. Gate admission will be $5.

Pageantry will continue on Wednesday night, June 18 with the Teen Miss and Miss Clinton County Fair starting at 7 p.m. on the stage, but once again, optional events will include Dirt Drags and Lazer Tag with gate admission $5.

There will also be various events on Thursday, June 19, with the programs beginning at 6:30 p.m. with the Cornhole Tournament. Then at 7 p.m., the ATV and Dirt Bike Rodeo will take place.

Also on Thursday and Friday nights, there will be something new, especially for the outdoor types, as Chainsaw Sculpture will be demonstrated. Chainsaws will be used to carve animal figures of all kinds, benches and more and is sure to be both entering and a learning experience for many.

Friday night, June 20 will bring back the always popular Demolition Derby, a Power Wheels Competition and Lawnmower Derby starting at 7 p.m. Admission at the gate both Thursday and Friday nights will be $5 each.

Absent on Friday this year will be the drawing for the tractor as the fair board opted not to have the tractor give-away this year.

The 2014 fair will conclude on Saturday, June 21. The annual baby show will be held that morning starting at 10 a.m. with a $2 gate admission.

The fair will conclude that night with the KOTTPA Truck Pull at 7 p.m. and wrestling will be featured in the ring in front of the grandstands at 8 p.m. Admission at the gate Saturday night is also only $5.

The carnival will be on the midway all week and feature armband options where you can pay one price and ride all rides all night Armbands will be available Monday, Tuesday and Thursday for $10 and Wednesday, Friday and Saturday for $12.

Of course, a county fair wouldn't be a county fair without the participation of the community and that includes 4-H shows, exhibits of all kinds in the Exhibit Hall and more.

A complete listing of rules, regulations, times and contact persons for events is being published this week in the annual Clinton County Fair catalog.

See you at the 2014 Clinton County Fair!

Summertime camp adventures

Local youth head out this week for 4-H camp

Three buses were in the parking lot at Clinton County High School Monday morning loading up before heading to Jabez, Kentucky, for the county's annual 4-H Camp summer trip. Each year, students travel to the camp to take part in several outdoor activities including archery, canoeing, swimming, arts and crafts and many more activities.

This year, 4-H Agent Brandon Pharis said the boys' bunk house was completely full and that's the first time that has happened in many years. Pharis said there was a waiting list this year for spots to go to camp and he noted there were 67 students making the week-long camp vacation.

Students will return from camp around noon on Friday according to Pharis.

In the top photo, campers and parents loaded the luggage bus just before departing early Monday morning. Below, Ethan Daniels helped place the luggage into the seats of the bus. The inset photo, Lamon Tyler Hubbs handed luggage up to Daniels. One bus was used solely to transport luggage while two others transported campers to 4-H Camp.

Parties continue to discuss concerns surrounding Wellness Center but nothing has been resolved as of yet

The financial issues pertaining to the Twin Lakes Family Wellness Center continue to be hashed out, yet still unresolved at presstime, following correspondence relayed to local officials in late May.

Letters from attorney David Choate as well as Jesse Stockton, President of the Wellness Center board, were forwarded to the city and county—with Choate's letter dated May 21 and Stockton's response on May 30.

Attorney Choate represents local businessman Weldon Haddix, owner of Haddix Gas and Electric Company, which recently filed a lien against the Wellness Center due to a debt for propane that has accumulated to over $60,000.00. The lien was filed in late April in the County Clerk's Office.

Since the letters were delivered, no official actions have been taken by any entity, but both attorney's expressed ideas and a willingness to resolve the issue without having to continue with further litigation.

Choate's letter reads as follows:

"I met with Weldon Haddix earlier this week and he has authorized me to file suit against the County of Clinton as well as Twin Lakes Family Wellness Center, Inc. as a result of non-payment of gas applied to the Wellness Center at the request of both the county and the Wellness Center in the approximate sum of $67,000.00 plus legal fees, court costs, etc. I will be working on this lawsuit and would expect same to be filed within the next 30 days.

It is my understanding that there are loan funds available at 0 percent interest which could be secured to pay Mr. Haddix the indebtedness owed to him and, quite frankly, I am astounded

City council approves first reading of $3.9 million budget

Albany City Council, meeting in regular session in the absence of Mayor Nicky Smith, who was out of town, approved first reading of the 2014-15 year fiscal budget, as well as other items on Tuesday, June 3.

Five of six council members were present and the body elected councilwoman Tonya Thrasher to chair the brief meeting in the mayor's absence.

The council, on a motion by councilman Leland Hicks, voted unanimously to approve first reading of the city's next fiscal year budget of a little over $3.9 million. The proposed budget is around $400,000 less than the current 2013-14 year budget.

The council had received a copy of the budget at its May meeting for review and is expected to give final approval at a call meeting later this month since the new budget becomes effective July 1.

On a motion by councilman James "Smitty" Smith, they also voted to approve a resolution authorizing the mayor apply for U.S. Department of Justice Department, Office of Policing Services funding for the Cops Hiring Program (CHP). Albany Police Chief Ernest Guffey said if funds were approved, they would be used toward police officer training.

Council members then discussed a rental property issue on Third Street in which councilman Hicks indicated the local health department had been notified. The location, which was being rented, was apparently causing a concern for area residents and council members agreed they should also talk to the property owner.

The council also discussed a water run-off problem in the area around the Garden Spot in south Albany and the need to contact the state Department of Transportation about doing a study of the traffic congestion problems near the north side stoplight where several businesses and fast food restaurants are located. Most members did agree, however, that the new bypass has helped the traffic congestion problem tremendously, mainly by taking larger vehicles away from the downtown area.

City legal advisor Norb Sohm also briefly discussed the situation with the litigation surrounding the Twin Lakes Family Wellness Center. The short discussion came about as the result of two letters that the city had received pertaining to the matter—one from local attorney David Choate, who is representing Haddix Gas and Electric and a response letter from attorney Jesse Stockton, who is also President of the Board of Directors of the Wellness Center.

Haddix Gas and Electric has filed a lien against the facility, which owes in excess of $60,000 in propane bills.

In his letter to the county, as well as the Wellness Center and the city, dated May 21, attorney Choate indicated (Weldon) Haddix had authorized the go-ahead to file suit against the county and Wellness enter in relation to the debt, which includes legal fees, court costs, etc.

Attorney Sohm said, in his opinion, "I don't think it's the city's fight...they're not going to sell

Clinton County students -
Hannah Smith, Carmen Tallent,
Ashton Thrasher, and Carly Paige Upchurch have been named 2014 Rogers Explorers

Clinton County Middle School students Hannah Smith, Carmen Tallent, Ashton Thrasher, and Carly Paige Upchurch have been selected by The Center for Rural Development to build their math, science, and technology skills this summer at the 2014 Rogers Explorers youth leadership program.

Hannah is the daughter of James Eric Smith and Melissa P. Smith. Carmen is the daughter of Rodney and Tammy Tallent. Ashton is the daughter of Mark and Allison Thrasher. Carly is the daughter of Adam and Pattie Upchurch.

One hundred and fifty middle school graduates from Southern and Eastern Kentucky will converge on the campuses of five Kentucky colleges and universities for this year's Rogers Explorers program. It is the largest class ever in the history of the eight-year-old program.

"Rogers Explorers gives students a one-of-a-kind learning experience to explore different career opportunities and possible career paths in the fields of math, science, and technology," said Delaney Stephens, community liaison and youth programs coordinator for The Center. "The program also encourages creative thinking and teamwork and builds leadership skills as the region's next generation of leaders and entrepreneurs."

Rogers Explorers is presented by The Center for Rural Development in partnership with Lindsey Wilson College, University of the Cumberlands, Eastern Kentucky University, Morehead State University, and the newest host site, Asbury University.

Students spend three days and two nights on the campuses of one of these Kentucky colleges or universities. The program is open to eighth-grade students within The Center's 45-county primary service area who have a strong interest in developing skills in leadership, technology, math, science, and community service.

WANTED - MEN

“The greatest want of the age is men. Men who are not for sale. Men who are honest, sound from center to circumference, true to the heart’s core. Men who will condemn wrong in friend or foe, in themselves as well as others. Men whose consciences are as steady as the needle to the pole. Men who will stand for the right if the heavens totter and the earth reels. Men who can tell the truth, and look the world and the Devil right in the eye. Men that neither brag nor run. Men that neither flag nor flinch. Men who can have courage without shouting to it. Men in whom the current of everlasting life runs still, deep and strong. Men who do not cry nor cause their voices to be heard in the streets, but who will not fail nor be discouraged till judgment be set in the earth. Men who know their message and tell it. Men who know their places and fill them. Men who will not lie. Men who are not too lazy to work, nor too proud to be poor.” So reads a quotation from an unknown source which we have come across.

Spurgeon speaking along these lines says, “The Holy Ghost within a man gives greater force to his manhood than any other conceivable power. Our young men would do well to see this. Our Christian men are under an imperative necessity to do so. None of us would wish to give the impression to the world that the modern followers of Jesus Christ are a set of milksops and effeminate make-believes. The martyr’s eye looked at the headman’s axe and blanched not, peered into the blazing furnace and was not afraid; the confessor’s tongue could only be silenced by being torn from his mouth, and even then his patient countenance preached a sermon which the deaf might hear. Manliness was the most apparent of all the human features of primitive Christianity, it was the very genius of the Reformation, it will be the leading virtue in any prosperous church today.”

Yes, we need God-called, Spirit-filled, Christ-honoring, sin-hating, soul-loving, Bible-believing men. The need of our pulpits is for real men of God. Where today do we see men like Spurgeon, Moody, Sunday, Wesley and others of yesteryear? Who will be our spiritual leaders of tomorrow? Has the world yet seen what God can do with a man completely sold out to Him? Pray for God to raise up real men for His service. “Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest to send forth labourers into his harvest.”

Tips for enjoying summer gatherings if you have diabetes

by the National Diabetes Education Program

Summer is here! And, like all of us, you probably want to work on getting active, going to the beach, and buying those summer clothes you’ve had your eye on. Go for it! Just remember, with all those summer barbeques and family reunions coming up, you have to keep your eating habits in shape too.

Making healthy food choices, even while on vacation, is a key step to staying healthy, feeling better and most importantly, managing your diabetes.

The National Diabetes Education Program (NDEP) has tips for eating healthy during gatherings this summer:

- At a summer buffet, start by looking at the table to see what’s available. Fill your plate with mostly vegetables and whole grains. If there are meat dishes, limit your portion to the size and thickness of a deck of cards. Choose lean meats, poultry, or fish instead of high fat meats, such as barbecued ribs. Choose grilled chicken –and remove the skin-instead of something fried.
- Look for high-fiber foods, such as dried beans and peas, lentils, and dark green vegetables such as broccoli, cabbage, spinach, and kale. Dishes with green beans, three-beans, black beans, and black-eyed peas are always good choices. Other good choices are whole grain foods such as brown rice, couscous, and whole wheat bread and pasta.
- Limit dishes with a lot of mayonnaise, sour cream, and butter. Choose veggies that are light on dressing and cheese. For fun, try making your own dressing with a little olive oil and vinegar. If you make a sandwich, use whole wheat bread with mustard or salsa instead of mayonnaise.
- Try to drink water or unsweetened tea, instead of juice and regular soda with your meal. If you choose to drink alcoholic beverages, drink only with a meal and limit it to no more than one drink (for women) or two drinks (for men) a day.
- Have fruit for dessert!

Summer is a great season to increase your daily fruit intake. Everyone — including people with diabetes — needs several servings of fruit a day. What’s summer without delicious watermelon or strawberries? Fruit is a good source of fiber, vitamins, and minerals, and has zero fat.

Summer is a time to enjoy family, friends, and life. It’s also a great time to get active and eat healthy foods, to manage your diabetes. It’s not always easy, but it’s worth it.

How to prevent insect problems in stored wheat

Sources: Sam McNeill, UK agricultural engineer and Doug Johnson, UK entomologist

Wheat harvest will soon be under way; the crop seems to be maturing well around the area. The following article from UK specialists, Sam McNeill and Doug Johnson gives a good outline for growers to help reduce damages to stored grain.

It’s usually much cheaper to prevent a problem on the farm than to fix one.

This experience certainly applies to insect infestations in stored wheat. Under the right environmental conditions, even small infestations can grow to profit-robbing proportions that cost you hundreds or even thousands of dollars in pest treatment expenses or elevator discounts.

The best way to avoid insect problems in stored wheat is to follow preventive management practices from harvest until you deliver the crop for sale. These steps include conscientious equipment management before, during and after harvest and good sanitation practices. Other safeguards are thoroughly drying the crop, timely aeration, and frequently checking grain condition.

Your first step is to thoroughly clean all equipment that wheat will pass through from the field to the storage bin. This list includes combines, grain carts, trucks or gravity wagons, dump pits, transport augers or bucket elevators, hopper tanks, dryers, conveyors and storage bins. Use a small, wet-dry vacuum cleaner for hard-to-reach ledges and other areas on this equipment.

If you used a high-pressure sprayer or compressed air to clean combines and hauling vehicles last fall, inspect them for places you might have missed during cleaning. Pay close attention to areas in the rear of the combine where insects could overwinter in small pockets of debris or grain dust. Also remove grain dust that might have accumulated in the corners of hauling vehicle beds.

If you plan to use the first load of wheat to clean handling equipment, be sure to keep this grain separate and sell it soon after harvest no matter what the price. It’s better to lose a few cents on several hundred bushels than risk infecting an entire bin of wheat worth several thousand dollars.

Alternatively, you may choose to treat the first load of wheat with a grain protectant. This will help control insects in the incoming wheat, and aid in prevention of movement of insects upward from beneath the perforated floor. Though using a grain protectant can be expensive, choosing to treat the first and last loads can be a good investment. Insecticides labeled for this use are listed at the end of ENT- 47, Insecticide Recommendations for Small Grains, found online at: <http://pest.ca.uky.edu/EXT/Recs/ENT47-SmallGrain.pdf> or at your county extension office. Always follow insecticide label use and storage instructions.

The most cost-effective way to protect stored grain from insects is to follow good sanitation practices in and around the bin. Use a broom, shovel and wet-dry vacuum to thoroughly clean the bin and apply an insecticide to all interior surfaces before adding wheat to the bin. This very important step goes a long way to protect grain from insects during the first few critical months of storage.

Always follow insecticide label use and storage instructions. Remember that some products require a time delay between spraying and putting grain into the storage bin.

The few hours of time and energy you spend on cleaning and sanitation will go much further than other more costly options.

Here are some more practices for economical insect control in stored wheat:

- Harvest wheat at a manageable moisture level for your particular operation. Harvest at a moisture level of 15 percent or lower if heated-air drying isn’t available.
- Adjust combines before and during harvest to reduce kernel damage and limit trash.
- Dry wheat to 12.5 percent moisture content if you plan to hold it a month or longer.
- Clean wheat before storing it.
- Unload enough wheat to form an inverted cone in the top of the bin to provide uniform air flow through the grain.
- If you’ve had consistent problems with Indian meal moth, you might want to apply an approved cap-out treatment to the top 12 inches of wheat.
- Frequently inspect stored wheat for insect activity and changes in temperature or moisture.
- Use fans to cool stored wheat after drying as soon as possible in September and at least once a month during the fall to cool grain below 55 degrees Fahrenheit.
- Fumigate by an approved applicator only when sanitation, proper drying and aeration fail to control insect activity.

Following these preventative management practices requires a lot of work and diligence, but your rewards will be fewer insect problems during storage and lower discounts when you sell the grain.

Farm Service Agency County Committee nomination period begins June 15

The nomination period for local Farm Service Agency (FSA) county committees begins Sunday, June 15, 2014.

To be eligible to serve on an FSA county committee, a person must participate or cooperate in a program administered by FSA, be eligible to vote in a county committee election and reside in the local administrative area where the person is nominated.

Farmers and ranchers may nominate themselves or others. Organizations representing minorities and women also may nominate candidates. To become a candidate, an eligible individual must sign the nomination form, FSA-669A. The form and other information about FSA county committee elections are available at www.fsa.usda.gov/elections. Nomination forms for the 2014 election must be postmarked or received in the local USDA Service Center by close of business on Aug. 1, 2014. Elections will take place this fall.

While FSA county committees do not approve or deny farm ownership or operating loans, they make decisions on disaster and conservation programs, emergency programs, commodity price support loan programs and other agricultural issues. Members serve three-year terms. Nationwide, there are about 7,800 farmers and ranchers serving on FSA county committees. Committees consist of three to 11 members that are elected by eligible producers.

FSA will mail ballots to eligible voters beginning Nov. 3, 2014. Ballots are due back to Albany Farm Service Agency either via mail or in person by Dec. 1, 2014. Newly elected committee members and alternates take office on Jan. 1, 2015.

Center

that the county and the Wellness Center will not agree to a transaction of that nature.

It would appear to be quite simple for the Wellness Center to borrow these monies with the county to guarantee repayment to the lending institution by co-signing the note, with the Wellness Center thereafter repay the indebtedness borrowed directly to the lending institution. With no interest being charged on the loan the Wellness Center would have no problem with repayment of that indebtedness. In the alternative, the county could borrow the money at 0 percent interest and let the Wellness Center pay back the county on a monthly basis.

The county has in the past paid on behalf of the Wellness Center, including a partial payment to Mr. Haddix, and it is my understanding that Mr. Haddix was assured by the county that if he continued to supply gas that his indebtedness would in fact be paid.

Neither Mr. Haddix nor I desire to institute this litigation and deprive the citizens of Clinton County of the Wellness Center because I do believe that this litigation will end up closing the facility. Once judgment is secured against the facility, which I feel that it will be, that assets of the facility will be attached and bank accounts garnished, including membership dues that might be paid by the general public.

Obviously, Mr. Haddix, as a small businessman, cannot stand to lose the sum of $67,000.00 nor could any member of the fiscal court nor you or I.

Again, it would seem to me to be a prudent course of action for the county to find some way to see that Mr. Haddix is paid in full, or at least a reasonable settlement offer made to save this public facility which is a great benefit to the county.

I did want to advise you that Mr. Haddix has decided that he has no choice but to proceed with litigation.

Thank you for your time and consideration in this matter."

Stockton's letter of response reads:

"Please be advised the Board of Directors is in receipt of the letter sent by Mr. Choate dated May 21, 2014. It is the goal of the board to work with the county and Mr. Haddix to resolve the issue. If you are unaware, the Wellness Center has made great strides since February, 2013, and is now on a much stronger financial footing. Some examples are as follows:

1. Many past due bills have been paid (approximately $13,200.00).

2. The county generously paid $10,000 to South Kentucky RECC.

3. The building was converted to natural gas. The county was able to use the grant funds to lay the natural gas line. This will benefit the EMS building and the fire station.

4. The 24 hour access has now been implemented.

5. There is now financial stability in order to keep the pool heated on a continuing basis. This will maintain and increase membership.

6. There are three utility bills owed by the Wellness Center (water, electric and Haddix Gas). The center has on a monthly basis been reducing the arrearage on the water and electric bills.

It would be instructive for all parties to contemplate how we arrived at this moment. The board, along with assistance from citizens in our community, raised approximately $250,000.00 prior to the grant process. Much effort and time was spent obtaining a 501 (c) (3) non-profit designation so these funds would be tax exempt. The members of the board have personally donated monies and their time for almost nine years in overseeing that the center was built and seeing to it's operation. No board member has ever received any compensation whatsoever. Once the grant process began, the construction of the center and the particulars of it's construction were out of our hands. If not for the former Senate President and his position in state government, Clinton County would never have received the grant.

As all of you were informed at the public meeting, the board was in the red on the gas bill before we ever started because of the gas used by Alliance. Also, the price of gas propane) as charged by Mr. Haddix was about four times the price of natural gas. Moreover the vent for the boiler and the pool heater was installed incorrectly by Alliance or it's subcontractors causing the heater to malfunction and burn more gas.

When the meeting occurred in May, 2013, the fiscal court on it's own motion and volition wanted to pay Mr. Haddix $10,000.00. This may have made everyone on the court feel good, but it was a mistake because the entire issue regarding the gas bill should have been resolved before any monies were paid. Because of the interest that is being charged by Mr. Haddix, the bill is now greater than prior to the payment of $10,000.00.

If litigation occurs, it will be the board's position that we are not in breach of the lease with the county due to the following reasons:

1. Propane gas was installed prior to the board taking possession. The board was never consulted or ever authorized the use of propane from Mr. Haddix.

2. The propane supply from Mr. Haddix was the most commercially unreasonable supply of energy that could have been obtained in Clinton County at that time.

3. The vents to the boiler and heater were installed incorrectly even though hundreds of thousands of dollars had been paid through the grant process to see that the systems in the building were installed correctly.

4. No assurances were made by the board to Mr. Haddix to pay all of the arrearage. Mr. Haddix had a duty to mitigate his damages.

5. The county paid Mr. Haddix $10,000.00 on the arrearage without making any arrangement with the board or Mr. Haddix to resolve this matter in it's entirety.

It is not the intent of the board to be adversarial with the county or Mr. Haddix, but rather to point out these facts so that the fiscal court and Mr. Haddix will be aware of all the facts so everyone can be properly informed as regards to all factual and legal issues. Regardless of what happens, everyone must realize that this county was given a tremendous gift. That gift is now under the stewardship of the citizens of this community, it's elected representatives and the board of the Wellness Center whom many citizens of this community placed their trust. The board intends to and wants to work with both parties to resolve this issue, but we are not able or willing to bear the full brunt of this indebtedness. Compromise will be required from all sides.

On a personal note from someone who has had the privilege of practicing law for the last twenty-four years, I am confident in saying if this matter is litigated and tried, all parties lose financially. But more importantly, the singular point that will be proven is that none of the parties are worthy of the gift we were given."

The issue, including the letters, were brought to light at last Tuesday's regular meeting of Albany City Council, with city attorney Norb Sohm just briefly discussing the matter and giving his opinion from the city's standpoint.

No official litigation had been taken of any type as of presstime Tuesday, June 10, but the matter is expected to be on the agenda at the next Clinton County Fiscal Court meeting that is scheduled for next Thursday, June 19 at 5 p.m.

REGIONAL NEWS

TIMES
Russell Springs

For new Russell County Laker basketball coach John Tinsley, it was a position he couldn't pass up. He's been impressed with the Laker basketball program for several years, and now, he has the opportunity to lead that program.

After last month's news that former Laker basketball coach Willie Feldhaus was stepping down from his position, Russell County has found his successor in the former Glasgow head coach. Tinsley has spent the last two seasons as the head coach of the boys' basketball program at Glasgow High School.

Tinsley brings much experience to the Laker basketball program, as he has held multiple coaching jobs throughout his career. With all that experience, Tinsley has been no stranger to success. He holds an overall coaching record of 269-185, claiming nine district titles and three regional championships.

His first coaching stint began at Hancock County High School in 1989 as an assistant. The following year, he was named the head coach at Hancock County, at only 25 years old.

"I definitely learned the ropes there," Tinsley said. "We had a good team there. We made it to the finals there and got beat by the eventual champion both years."

Tinsley says after his stint at Hancock County, he took over the head coaching job at Barren County in 1996. He guided Barren County to an appearance in the state tournament in 1999 before being ousted by state runner-up Scott County.

He left Barren County in 2001 to take a job at Owensboro High School, where he was on the staff for an Owensboro team that won the Third Region championship in 2002. It was after that year that Tinsley decided to take a break from coaching to spend more time with his children.

"I decided I would just get out and coach my boys," Tinsley said. "I just took a couple years to coach them and enjoyed myself."

Tinsley says that in 2005, Glasgow called and he coached there for a few years until he decided to take an assistant job at Grayson County High School.

"My boys were in the eighth grade. I decided I didn't want to be their head coach. I just thought it would be too hard on them," Tinsley said.

After a stint at Grayson County where Tinsley was part of a staff that led Grayson County to the quarterfinals of the state tournament in 2009, he turned back to Glasgow.

"After my boys' junior year, the coach at Glasgow got out," Tinsley said. "My wife got a job at Glasgow as an assistant superintendent of schools, so I decided to take that job back over, and that leads me to where I am now."

Tinsley says that when he learned of the opening at Russell County, he knew it was a great opportunity. He also says that he has known coach Willie Feldhaus for a long time and has a ton of respect for him.

"He (Feldhaus) has done a great job here," Tinsley said. "I have so much respect for what he has done with the program and the level he has brought it to. In my opinion, he is one of the most respected guys in the Fourth Region. My sons were going to play for him my senior year had the Glasgow job not opened up."

For the past several years, Russell County has been near the top of the Fourth Region every year, and Tinsley says that he wants to continue that string of success.

"I just want to keep the train going down that track," Tinsley said. "We just want to keep building on to that success. Coach Feldhaus has already built this up and I just want to keep it going, and that will be challenging."

Tinsley says that the only job he was really interested in was the Russell County job when it came open.

"That was the only job. I turned down another opportunity," Tinsley said. "I've told my kids this and I still mean it. Any of those top jobs in the state could open up, and I wouldn't be interested. This was the only job I wanted."

After a one-year hiatus, Craig Pippen has been tabbed to return to the Lady Laker sideline once again in the 2014-15 season as the head coach of the Russell County High School girls' basketball program.

"After stepping down after 16 straight years as a head high school basketball coach, I soon realized how much I needed the game," Pippen said last week. "Sitting in Laker Gym last year watching the team was very difficult. However, I did enjoy coaching my two boys; I do not regret my time off."

Pippen said he also needed rest from an emotionally draining year that included the loss of his father.

"While taking time off I had the opportunity to look at our program from the outside in," he said. "I was able to put a lot of things in perspective. I now feel like I have more energy than ever and a new sense of direction."

Pippen, who has 225 wins as a head coach in 16 seasons, was first hired before the 2007-08 season to guide the Lady Laker program that had just gone 4-23 during the 2006-07 season. In his six years as head coach, Pippen compiled a 105-63 record, winning the 16th District championship four times (2010-2013) and making five 4th Region Tournament appearances.

He has been an assistant coach at Lexington Catholic under Danny Haney, Marion County under Tim Davis, Dunbar under Frank Watson and Henry Clay under Greg Holt. He was the head boys' basketball coach at Model from 1997 to 2002 and at Danville from 2002-2007 before taking over the girls' program at Russell County.

"Thanks to the hard work of a great group of former players and coaches, we had great success during my previous six years as Lady Laker coach," Pippen said. "However, I am not satisfied. I truly believe we can take the program a step further this time around. It will take time and persistence but I know we can achieve a high level of play with a strong work ethic. The pieces are in place, now it's time to go to work, and get the job done."

Pippen said he wished to thank the Russell County administration for putting its trust in him again and to have the opportunity to do what he loves to do.

"I am truly blessed to be a part of Laker nation," Pippen said.

THE HERALD
CITIZEN
Cookeville, TN

A one-vehicle accident on Old Highway 42 near Rickman claimed the life of a Cookeville woman recently.

Anna F. Fielder, 66, of Cookeville, was traveling north on Old Highway 42 near Rickman Tuesday, May 29 in a Dodge truck. As she was attempting to negotiate a curve, according to the Tennessee Highway Patrol, she lost control and traveled off the highway striking a metal culvert, then a utility pole before coming to a final rest on the truck's top.

She is believed to have died suddenly and was reportedly not wearing a seatbelt at the time of the accident. She was pinned underneath the bed of the vehicle and had to be extricated.

A Cookeville man recently entered a guilty plea in U.S. District Court to producing false identification documents. He used the fake ID's to facilitate meth production.

On May 20, according to a press release from David Rivera, U.S. Attorney for the Middle District of Tennessee, Richard Earl Graybeal, 41, of Cookeville, pled guilty to producing false identification documents and admitted that he had unlawfully manufactured Tennessee driver's licenses and identification documents to facilitate the purchase of cold medications, which are commonly used in the production of methamphetamine.

"The illicit production of meth is a continuing problem in Middle Tennessee, and we recognize the value of using all available resources to combat it," Rivera said. "That includes bringing federal criminal charges, when appropriate, including offenses that aid in the purchase of precursors necessary to produce it. The U.S. Attorney's Office and our law enforcement partners will continue to direct the necessary resources to our communities where the manufacture of meth is epidemic."

Testimony at the plea hearing established that Graybeal was placed on state probation in 2009 for promoting the manufacture of methamphetamine. Graybeal's probation officer, Overton County law enforcement officers and the Tennessee Highway Patrol received information that Graybeal was making identification documents in false names to use in purchasing cold medicines containing pseudophedrine, a key ingredient necessary for manufacturing methamphetamine and which requires identification to purchase.

Officers conducted a search of Graybeal's residence on August 17, 2012, and discovered more than 70 fake Tennessee driver's licenses and state identification cards. Also found were computer equipment and materials used in manufacturing the false documents and paraphernalia used in the manufacture of methamphetamine. Several of the false licenses bore different names but contained a photo of the same person. Other documents bore Graybeal's photo but contained aliases.

Subsequent investigation by the U.S. Secret Service confirmed that Graybeal had used one or more of these false licenses and identities to make purchases of cold medicine.

Todd Hudson, the special agent in charge of the Nashville Secret Service Office, said, "The Secret Service believes in a partnership approach to law enforcement, especially when the resources of its participants can be combined to effectively and efficiently make a significant impact in crime in the communities where we live."

"In this case, the Secret Service partnered with the Tennessee Highway Patrol and Overton County Sheriff's Department to suppress the use of false identification documents intended for use in drug-related activities."

"It is evident that identity theft and other criminal activities are interconnected with the potential to adversely affect our communities. The Secret Service is committed to combating identity theft and will continue to work with out state and local partners to reduce this type of criminal activity."

Graybeal's probation was subsequently revoked, and he is currently serving a state prison sentence for the previous methamphetamine charge. He will be sentenced in U.S. District Court on August 21 and faces a maximum of 20 years in prison and a $20,000 fine.

The Overton County Sheriff's Office, Tennessee Highway Patrol and the U.S. Secret Service investigated this case. Assistant U.S. Attorney Hilliard Hester prosecuted the case.

WAYNE CO.
OUTLOOK

State Auditor Adam Edelen has released the audit of the financial statements of the Wayne County Fiscal Court for the year that ended June 30, 2013. State law requires annual audits of fiscal courts.

The auditor noted no instances of non-compliance.

The auditor also noted no matters involving internal control over financial reporting and its operation that were considered to be material weaknesses.

Recent changes in auditing standards require the auditor's letter to communicate whether the financial statement presents fairly the revenues, expenditures and excess fees of the Wayne County Fiscal Court in accordance with general accepted accounting principles in the United States.

"This audit is another good sign for economic and industrial development in Wayne County," said Wayne County Judge-Executive Greg Rankin. "Companies want to work and do business with local governments that are honest and have a track record of strong fiscal responsibility."

The report found that the financial statement of the fiscal court did not follow this format, however the financial statement is fairly presented in conformity with the regulatory basis of accounting, which is an acceptable reporting methodology.

This reporting methodology is followed for 115 of 120 fiscal court audits in Kentucky.

Mark me down as zero for three in last week-end's running of the third leg of the Triple Crown series, the Belmont Stakes.
California Chrome - the odds on favorite in Saturday's race finished in a dead heat for fourth place after having picked up impressive wins in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness.
Of course I noted last week my plans to place small wagers on Chrome and that was wasted money, as was my bet on Commanding Curve which finished ninth in the 11 horse field.
A third "long shot" hope that I placed my final wager for the race on - Samraat - gave me the most hope briefly for picking up some extra spending money, but when the horses crossed the finish line there were five others in front of my 20-1 hope.
Of course Tonalist, who paid $20.40 for those lucky to get bets down on him, picked up the Belmont trophy with a head win over Commissioner and link out in front of Medal Count.
That ends my horse betting for another year, but in all of the aftermath controversy that has been centered around California Chrome owner Steve Coburn and his whining, rants and raves not only after his Belmont Stakes loss on Saturday, but also similar rants and raves that followed his wins in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness - the horse racing world pretty much agrees that this owner - a "first time, novice get into the horse game for a tax deduction owner" has pretty much laid claim to another title - "horse's butt" of the year.

On to other things.
Locally, we're in that "lull" period with very little going on in the sports world, with the exception of some youth baseball and softball action.
Stop by the Mountain View Park in the afternoons and catch some of the action on hand. If you love the sport - it certainly doesn't get any more pure than watching the youngest of players learning and having fun doing so.
Fair action next week starts with a fast pace
Of course the Clinton County Fair hits the schedule next week, and with it, my favorite night of activities, the Family Night which is always packed with fun events - games and athletic competitions for all ages.
One change in the format that should be noted for this year is the move to Monday for Family Night from it's long standing Tuesday night slot.
Come on out and get moving. There will be something for everyone and plenty of fun to go all around.
The lineup of events gets underway at 7 p.m. at the fairgrounds and admission is just $1.
It should be a great start to a fun-filled week.
See you at the Clinton County Fair!

Mitchell's philanthropy at UK would draw a Bully! from TR (kinda, sorta)

The American Institute of Philanthropy (AIP) changed its name the other day to Charity-Watch.
I like the original better, don't you? Never mind, the bottom line part is who's who on the list, right? American philanthropists give away money of their own for the betterment of worthy causes beyond themselves.
On the list: Bill Gates ... Warren Buffett ... Henry Bloch ... 50 Cent, and Matthew Mitchell.
Mitchell on the list? Just kidding, but its true a University of Kentucky ball coach has gone philanthropic. With fanfare of course.
"Bully for you young man. That's Bully." Teddy Roosevelt would approve.
Mitchell giving back is wonderful isn't it? Well, sort of.
The UK ball coach intends to allot 100 grand from his pay every year for 10 years, give back to UK department of athletics.
Maybe Mitchell read another remark from TR. "Do what you can, with what you have, where you are."
Loving where he is, the University of Kentucky, I can understand and appreciate. But forgive me a bit of fiscal cynicism here. Isn't this more like a department employee taking a pay cut?
Coaching at Kentucky, Mitchell makes $1.1 million-a-year. Putting $100,000 back into Mitch Barnhart's budget looks to be short on philanthropy and long on theater. And the deal came two weeks before John Calipari said no to a reported $70 million offer from Cleveland Cavaliers then signed a new $52 million seven year deal with UK.
All things considered, Mitchell's deal shakes out kind of showy, don't you think?
Never mind. The larger impact here could be less about Mitchell's place on a list with Gates, Buffett and 50 Cent than a subtle challenge.
To wit: "Okay, Cal, you and your overpaid ball coach pals around the country - while the pizza delivery kid has his fingers crossed for a minimum wage increase so he can afford $2.85-a-gallon of gas to deliver your pie on time, let's see what you got!"

Will be a treat won't it, next time the American Institute of Philanthropy issues its list, to see who's who?
WORLD SERIES III
Hat trick. The Louisville Cardinals are headed to the College Baseball World Series for third year in a row. A record 6,000 fans watched UofL come from behind, beat Kennesaw State, firm up a 49-15 record and head to Omaha.
With only the NBA playoffs and early going in Major League Baseball to compete, and the MLB draft as lead-in, the College World Series in America's heartland has a perfect niche for television coverage and potential to become a fan favorite in college sports. Under the commercial heading: "These are tomorrow's Big Leaguers."
If only college baseball would eliminate aluminum bats.
MOST FUN JOB IN COLLEGE HOOPS?
Most fun job in college basketball next season?
Eliminate the face-of-the-gamers: Krzyzewski, Pitino, Calipari and Izzo. Too rich, too much media, too pressured and too encumbered by self-importance.
Scratch off the crowd of so-called mid-major coaches. Not as much pressure and talk, not enough media and too focused on jump to next job.
Instead, pick a man with big charm, bigger charisma and talk-all-day baloney. A risk-taker who, after being caught cheating, fell so far from grace he landed in an ESPN studio expert chair next to the king of hot air, Dick Vitale.
With an NCAA probation that ends August 24, still a connect to ESPN, a new pay grade ($2.2 million a year), a new arena, new pep rally optimism and nowhere to go but up, it's Bruce Pearl at Auburn.
The new darling of college hoops, Pearl will coach a team that hasn't played in an NCAA

Attorney General chooses six counties to be audited following primary

Attorney General Jack Conway announced that six Kentucky counties were chosen in a random drawing Monday, June 9 to undergo independent inquiries for any potential irregularities that may have occurred during the primary election on May 20. The counties are: Meade, Allen, Clark, Warren, Breathitt and

"These audits ensure a fair and equitable election process in Kentucky and supplement the work our investigators did leading up to and during the primary election," General Conway said.

The post election audits, which are required by law (KRS 15.243), will be conducted by the Office of the Attorney General. Pursuant to KRS 15.243 (3), (a), the Kentucky Attorney General is required to conduct a post-election audit investigation in no fewer than five percent of Kentucky's counties following each primary and general election. The counties are selected in a public drawing and must be done within 20 days of the election.

In each county, these routine inquiries will include checking election forms and interviewing county officials. The selection of these counties does not imply that irregularities are suspected.

The six counties selected during the post-election audit in November 2012 include: Bath, Bracken, Bourbon, Grayson, Johnson and Lewis counties. There were no irregularities discovered during the last audit.

In addition to the post-election audit, follow-up investigations are continuing regarding complaints to the Election Fraud Hotline, which received 205 calls from more than 60 counties between 6 a.m. and 7 p.m. during the May 20 primary election. There were 49 allegations of vote-buying. Those allegations were made from 19 counties, including Clinton and Wayne counties. Specifics of the calls may not be discussed until investigations are complete.

On election day, investigators with the Office of the Attorney General also monitored polling places in each of Kentucky's six congressional districts.

As summer nears, livestock heat stress looms

By Aimee Nielson

With summer drawing near, it's a good time to start thinking about protecting livestock from inevitable heat stress conditions on the way.

"The combination of hot, muggy weather conditions prompts some real concern for humans, as well as livestock and pets," said Tom Priddy, meteorologist for the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, Food and Environment. "The livestock heat stress index is a combination of air temperature and humidity. That one-two punch makes it hazardous for people and animals. Dew point temperatures above 65 degrees lead officials to declare conditions dangerous for livestock."

The Livestock Heat Stress Index helps producers know when heat stress could create a problem for their animals. Periods of heat stress call for livestock producers to be vigilant in making sure their animals are able to withstand the conditions.

UKAg dairy specialist Jeffrey Bewley said the most important things producers can do are to provide cool, clean water and shade, with buildings as open as possible to help keep animals' internal body temperature within normal limits. Sprinkler systems that periodically spray a cool mist on the animals also are beneficial.

To keep cattle from becoming overheated, producers should not work cattle during periods of heat stress.

"To keep cattle from becoming overheated, you certainly do not want to work them during heat stress conditions—veterinarian work, reproductive checks or vaccinations," Bewley said.

Producers should also avoid transporting livestock during a heat danger or emergency period. If they must move animals during this time, producers should try to do so with fewer animals per load. Planning trips so producers can load animals immediately before leaving and quickly unload upon arrival can help minimize the risk.

Heat loss for all horses becomes difficult when temperatures exceed 90 degrees, so avoid exercising them during very hot periods. When humidity is high, temperatures much lower than 90 degrees can pose problems. Horse owners can reduce heat stress by scheduling activities during the cooler part of the day and giving horses plenty of water. Transporting horses during the cooler hours of the morning or evening can help. To reduce the risk of dehydration and heat stress, give horses access to water before, during and after transportation in hot weather.

Offer horses frequent drinks of water during work in hot weather. Allowing them to drink during work helps maintain water balance and relieves the urge to drink a lot of water after exercise. After a hard workout, water horses out gradually.

Even non-working horses will double their water intake during hot weather, so be sure plenty of water is available to horses in pastures, paddocks and stalls.

Lactating mares will have especially high water requirements because they are using water for milk production and heat loss.

Hot weather also will increase horses' need for salt because salt is lost during sweating. Heavy rains can "melt" salt blocks in pastures, so salt licks should be checked.

Visit the UK Ag Weather Center website at <http://weather.uky.edu> to keep up with current weather, forecasts, heat stress indices and more.

South Kentucky RECC membership meeting is well attended

Nearly 10,000 people attended the 76th Annual Membership Meeting of South Kentucky RECC held on June 5 at the co-op farm in Pulaski County. There were about 2,436 members registered.

As with years past, there were educational and informative exhibits for those in attendance to visit, including health booths, civic organizations, and businesses and many others. In addition, members were treated to some wonderful gospel music this year with opening act gospel group Kentucky Mountain Trio.

One of the themes of this year's meeting was Action. Coop – a response to the Environmental Protection Agency's new regulations regarding carbon emissions at new and existing coal-fired power plants. South Kentucky RECC and electric companies throughout the state and region are asking EPA to take a common-sense approach to carbon reduction. Gabe Snow, Political Advocate for the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, spoke on the recently released regulations and how they would affect Kentucky electric cooperative members, coal workers, and industry overall.

Following Snow's brief explanation of the regulations, he introduced America's Got Talent contestant Jimmy Rose, from Pineville, Kentucky, who sang his original song, "Coal Keeps the Lights On."

Featured entertainment was country music superstar group

Lonestar,

One of the highlights of each year's annual meeting is the presentation of the flags of the United States and state of Kentucky. Five SKRECC linemen Brad Coffey, Derek Maurath, Jack Willis, Barney Singleton, and Adam Neal climbed a pole set in the middle of the grounds and, with the help of lineman Ricky Bowling and Safety Supervisor Eddie Black, handed up the flags and displayed them at the top followed by the National Anthem.

The primary purpose for the Annual Meeting is the business meeting, which started around 7 p.m. The cooperative's bylaws provide that each year there shall be an Annual Membership Meeting for the presentation of reports from SKRECC officers and leadership.

Allen Anderson, CEO of South Kentucky RECC, recognized former director Glen Massengale and former manager Herman Schoolcraft with a moment of silence as both men have passed away within the past year.

Anderson reported to the membership that the co-op ended 2013 with $132 million in operating revenue and $242 million in total assets. He said 75 percent of SKRECC's costs are for wholesale power purchased, 10 percent is taxes, interest, and depreciation, which leaves 15% for operations. Anderson was also pleased to report that the board of director had voted in favor of and had returned $707,000 in patronage capital in 2013 for partial years of 1986 and 2011.

But Anderson added that by holding down controllable costs, use of technology, and retaining a lean workforce through attrition to 146 employees, which is 21 employees down from normal, South Kentucky RECC plans to continue to manage costs tightly, while continuing to provide excellent service.

He said, as it was 76 years ago when South Kentucky RECC was started, the connections we had then are just as important today – "connections" to the co-op's member-owners, "connections" to the communities the co-op serves, and "connections" through co-op employees.

After the Business Meeting, South KY RECC recognized the 12 Washington Rural Electric Youth Tour recipients and also awarded $11,000 in scholarships to 11 high school seniors in the service area as part of the Senior Scholarship Program.

South KY RECC believes that investing in the youth of its service territory has a profound effect on the improvement of the quality of life in the communities served, which fulfills its mission.

Anderson added, "Annual Meeting is a time for the co-op to celebrate with its membership, as well as tend to the important business of it. The board, management, and employees strive daily to provide the best possible service, and on that one day each year, we try to provide fun and let our members know how much they are appreciated.

"We hope next year that everyone will come join us in our celebration."

Flag Present – South Kentucky RECC linemen (top to bottom) Brad Coffey, Derek Maurath, Jack Willis, Barney Singleton, and Adam Neal climbed a pole set in the middle of the grounds and, with the help of lineman Ricky Bowling and Safety Supervisor Eddie Black, handed up the flags and displayed them at the top followed by the National Anthem.

Prevent summer slide for children at your local public library

*By Wayne Onkst
State Librarian and
Commissioner of the Kentucky
Department for Libraries and Archives.*

Summertime is here, and public libraries across Kentucky are offering a wide variety of summer reading activities for Kentucky families. Last year, 145,681 children in the Commonwealth participated, enjoying fun activities, special programs, and the freedom to choose their own reading material. This long running annual program has demonstrated over the years that reading is a fun family activity that can help establish a lifelong love of reading. But for those children who participate, there is an even greater benefit.

Research has shown that children who don't read or engage in enriching activities during the summer months suffer a phenomenon called summer slide. During the school year, middle-income and low-income children acquire reading skills at the same rate. Over the months of summer vacation, however, low-income children often lose skills while middle-income children steadily gain reading skills. The reading losses experienced by low-income students over the summer aren't recovered during the school year. As these reading losses are cumulative from year to year, by sixth grade as much as 80 percent of the reading skills gap between children from low and middle-income families can be attributed to summer slide.

The public library is the perfect place to fight summer slide. Studies demonstrate that regardless of other activities, the best predictor of reading skill loss or gain over the summer is whether or not a child reads.

The theme for each library's summer reading program is chosen locally, but many summer programs this year are emphasizing literacy, science and STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) activities. Not only will youth have a great time, but those who read even as few as five books over the summer will make clear gains in reading when returning to school in the fall. Children who spend approximately 11 minutes per day reading over the summer score in the 50th percentile in reading skills, while those who spend 38 minutes a day reading score in the 90th percentile.

Participating in your library's summer reading program can be a great, free family activity that provides many hours of enjoyment and lifelong memories while giving children an academic boost in the fall. Come to your library this summer to celebrate one of Kentucky's great traditions – summer reading!

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT NATURAL GAS DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

PARTNERS IN PIPELINE SAFETY

America's pipeline industry maintains an enviable record of safety and reliability. Pipelines are by far the safest means of transportation today. The purpose of our pipeline is provide safe, dependable, natural gas to your gas burning appliances 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. However, despite strict federal oversight and the conscientious efforts of companies like Navitas Utility Corporation, hazards do exist and emergencies, though infrequent, can occur. Statistics show that the majority of pipeline damage is caused by third parties (construction contractors, property owners, excavators, etc.) digging near buried pipelines. Damage to a pipeline, such as scratches, gouges, creases, dents, and the cutting of tracer wire or tracer tape installed along with polyethylene plastic should be reported to Navitas Utility Corporation. Third-party damage can be prevented by using a local excavation notification system known as One-Call and it's FREE!

The law requires anyone planning to dig or excavate near an underground pipeline to notify One-Call Center two working days (48 hours) prior to beginning excavation activities. The One-Call center will notify member utilities that operate buried facilities in the area. A utility representative will determine if the project is near underground facilities and dispatch someone to the work site to clearly mark the route and location of buried cables and/or pipelines. Call 811 and remember it's FREE!

NATURAL GAS LEAKS: RECOGNITION AND RESPONSE

Natural gas pipeline leaks or failures are rare, but an informed public can help prevent emergencies and minimize potential damage or injury in the unlikely event of an accident by knowing how to recognize and report pipeline problems.

HOW TO IDENTIFY A LEAK

The following signs may indicate a natural gas pipeline leak or failure:

SIGHT - A dense fog, mist, or white cloud. Bubbling in water and creeks or blowing dust and discolored or dying vegetation.

SMELL - Natural Gas is naturally odorless, so a rotten egg odor is added to aid in leak detection.

SOUND - Whistling, hissing, or roaring noise.

Know what's below.
Call before you dig.

WHAT TO DO IF A LEAK OCCURS

WHAT NOT TO DO...

Do NOT touch, breathe, or make contact with the leak.

Do NOT light a match, turn on or off light switches, use a home phone or cell phone or do anything that may create a spark.

Do NOT attempt to extinguish any natural gas fire.

Do NOT attempt to operate any valves.

What to DO...

DO leave the home, building or area of any suspected leak.

DO call Fort Cobb Fuel Authority at 866-797-3342 or 1-866-579-3303 or 911 once safely out of the area.

DO Warn others to stay out of the area

Bounty mutiny survivors reach Timor

June 14, 1789

English Captain William Bligh and 18 others, cast adrift from the HMS Bounty seven weeks before, reach Timor in the East Indies after traveling nearly 4,000 miles in a small, open boat.

On April 28, Fletcher Christian, the master’s mate on the Bounty, led a successful mutiny against Captain Bligh and his supporters. The British naval vessel had been transporting breadfruit saplings from Tahiti for planting on British colonies in the Caribbean. The voyage was difficult, and ill feelings were rampant between the captain, officers, and crew. Bligh, who eventually would fall prey to a total of three mutinies in his career, was an oppressive commander and insulted those under him. On April 28, near the island of Tonga, Christian and 25 petty officers and seamen seized the ship. The captain and 18 of his crew were set adrift in a small boat with 25 gallons of water, 150 pounds of bread, 30 pounds of pork, six quarts of rum, and six bottles of wine.

By setting the captain and his officers adrift in an overcrowded 23-foot-long boat in the middle of the Pacific, Christian and his conspirators had apparently handed them a death sentence. By remarkable seamanship, however, Bligh and his men reached Timor in the East Indies on June 14, 1789, after a voyage of about 3,600 miles. Bligh returned to England and soon sailed again to Tahiti, from where he successfully transported breadfruit trees to the West Indies.

Meanwhile, Christian and his men attempted to establish themselves on the island of Tubuai. Unsuccessful in their colonizing effort, the Bounty sailed north to Tahiti, and 16 crewmen decided to stay there, despite the risk of capture by British authorities. Christian and eight others, together with six Tahitian men, a dozen Tahitian women, and a child, decided to search the South Pacific for a safe haven. In January 1790, the Bounty settled on Pitcairn Island, an isolated and uninhabited volcanic island more than 1,000 miles east of Tahiti. The mutineers who remained on Tahiti were captured and taken back to England, where three were hanged. A British ship searched for Christian and the others but did not find them.

In 1808, an American whaling vessel was drawn to Pitcairn by smoke from a cooking fire. The Americans discovered a community of children and women led by John Adams, the sole survivor of the original nine mutineers. According to Adams, after settling on Pitcairn the colonists had stripped and burned the Bounty, and internal strife and sickness had led to the death of Christian and all the men but Adams. In 1825, a British ship arrived and formally granted Adams amnesty, and he served as patriarch of the Pitcairn community until his death in 1829.

In 1831, the Pitcairn islanders were resettled on Tahiti, but unsatisfied with life there they soon returned to their native island. In 1838, the Pitcairn Islands, which includes three nearby uninhabited islands, were incorporated into the British Empire. By 1855, Pitcairn’s population had grown to nearly 200, and the two-square-mile island could not sustain its residents. In 1856, the islanders were removed to Norfolk Island, a formal penal colony nearly 4,000 miles to the west. However, less than two years later, 17 of the islanders returned to Pitcairn, followed by more families in 1864. Today, around 40 people live on Pitcairn Island, and all but a handful are descendants of the Bounty mutineers. About a thousand residents of Norfolk Island (half its population) trace their lineage from Fletcher Christian and the eight other Englishmen.

SLA member captured after more than 20 years

June 16, 1999

On this day in 1999, Kathleen Ann Soliah, a former member of the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA), is arrested near her home in St. Paul, Minnesota. Soliah, who now calls herself Sara Jane Olsen, had been evading authorities for more than 20 years.

In the mid-1970s, the SLA, a small, radical American paramilitary group, made a name for itself with a series of murders, robberies and other violent acts. They were most well-known for the 1974 kidnapping of heiress Patty Hearst, who became a member of the group. In April 1975, members of the SLA robbed a bank in Carmichael, California, and, in the process, killed one of the bank’s customers, Myrna Opsahl. According to Patty Hearst, who served as the group’s getaway driver that day, Soliah took part in the robbery.

Four months later, in August 1975, Los Angeles policemen discovered a bomb where one of their patrol cars had earlier been parked. Though police believe it had been designed to explode when the car moved, it had failed to detonate. Soliah was indicted for the crime in 1976 but by then she had already left town, and did not return, becoming a fugitive for nearly 23 years. Soliah eventually settled with her husband, a doctor, and three children in St. Paul, Minnesota, where she continued to advocate for various causes under the assumed name Sara Jane Olsen.

In the spring of 1999, however, Soliah’s case was featured on an episode of television’s America’s Most Wanted; she was arrested several weeks later. In 2002, as part of a plea bargain, she pled guilty to two counts of planting bombs and was sentenced to five years and four months in jail. The Board of Prison Terms then changed her sentence to 14 years. After pleading guilty to the attempted bombings, she was arraigned for the Opsahl killing and was later convicted and sentenced to another six years.

In 2004, a judge threw out the adjusted 14-year term, saying the board “abused its discretion” in changing the sentence. She was released from a California prison in March 2009.

Man takes truck, holds up store at gun point

About $20 in one dollar bills was taken at gun point about 10:00 a.m. Wednesday from the store of W. T. Smith, in Duvall Valley.

Mrs. Smith, who was operating the store at the time, said that a man, about 20 years old, entered the store, and when she asked him what he wanted he drew a gun on her and said, “Yes, your money.” Mrs. Smith said she opened the cash register and the man took all the currency, but did not get the change.

Others in the store at the time of the robbery were Mrs. Smith’s brother-in-law, Luther Smith, and her grandson, Roger Lovelace. Lovelace rushed out as soon as the robber left and got the license number of the truck, a 1952 Dodge, which he was driving. After the robbery, the truck, driven by the hold-up man, headed toward Tennessee.

A witness recognized the hold-up man and told officers he was Frank Blankenship, Jr., Albany.

When Mrs. Smith got to Albany, she found that the truck driven by the hold-up man belonged to Will Ed Smith, Rt. 1, and had been taken at gun point by a man identified as Blankenship, from Homer Smith, son of Will Ed, several minutes before the store was robbed. About $6.00 was also taken from Homer Smith.

Local officers, Tennessee officers, and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Smith are searching for Blankenship, but at press time he had not been apprehended.

Local citizens protest raise in assessments

Mr. John Dorris and Mr. J. O. Dicken, who were appointed by the fiscal court were in Frankfort with me yesterday in protest of the blanket raise the State Tax Commission has made an attempt to levy on us for the year, 1954. Grover McWhorter, Fred McWhorter, R. C. Reneau, Oakley Poore, Billy Flowers, Jack Ferguson, and James K. Wisdom went along on their own as volunteers. We introduced every argument possible in protest of the increase in taxes on behalf of the taxpayers. We have hopes of getting some off, but will not know until further notice from the State Tax Commission. For the benefit of those who do not understand, we will not get a raise in assessment on household equipment, automobile, livestock, or farm machinery.

Your Tax Commissioner, Otis E. Jarvis

Fire damaged T. J. Allen’s home

The fire truck was called out Sunday afternoon to extinguish the fire at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Allen in east Albany. The fire was discovered by the neighbors as Mr. and Mrs. Allen were away from home. The fire was confined mostly to the upper story of the house, contents upstairs were badly damaged by the fire and water. Origin of the fire is unknown.

Jan. 23, 1952 – June 14, 2011

Sunshine, I have lived in darkness since you were taken from me. There's no sunshine since you're gone. With God's direction, I have found the path that will lead me to you, that I may reach out my hand to you once more and together we may enter the house of God and dwell there forever.

May God bless you and keep you until we are together again.
 With all my love,

Thanks

The family of Mitchell Bridgeman would like to extend a heartfelt thank you to everyone who was generous enough to donate to his benefit, who donated their time to work the benefit and everyone who came to support the benefit. We also want to thank everyone for their thoughts and prayers. God bless all of you!

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor,

Mordecai gets into trouble in Chapter 3 of Esther. The King promoted Haman to an office just below him in power. Other servants of the King were to honor Haman. Mordecai refused to do this.

My study Bible connects the word Agag in verse 1 to the title given to the Amalekite kings. Exodus 17:8-16 tells about the war between them and the Jewish people of Israel. Mordecai could never honor his people's enemies!

Pursuant to a Judgment and Order of Sale of the Clinton Circuit Court entered in the office of the Clinton Circuit Court Clerk on May 20, 2014, in the above styled action, the undersigned Master Commissioner of the Clinton Circuit Court will sell at public auction, on June 13, 2014, at 10:00 a.m., at the west door of the Clinton County Courthouse, Albany, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, the following described real property lying and being in Clinton County, Kentucky, with said properties being more particularly bounded and described as follows, to-wit:

Lying and being located in Clinton County, Kentucky, and being more particularly bounded and described as follows, to-wit:

Beginning on an iron pin set, being a new corner to the lands of the grantor, said pin being located S 29-21'-34" W – 227.28 feet from a (10) ten inch walnut found, being a corner to the parent tract Deed Book 106, Page 164; thence, severing the lands of the grantor, S 21-27'-05" W – 567.84 feet to an iron pin set; thence N 76-22'-22" W – 683.39 feet to an iron pin set; thence, N 35-55'-40" E – 331.92 feet to an iron pin set; thence, S 49-03'-25" E – 343.95 feet to an iron pin set; thence N 60-06'-39" E – 139.37 feet to an iron pin set; thence, N 01-01'-16" E – 90.30 feet to an iron pin set; thence, N 40-56'-51" W – 156.41 feet to an iron pin set on the South side of a (12) twelve foot easement; thence, continuing to sever the lands of the grantor, N 83-21'-44" E – 400.00 feet to the beginning, and containing 5.014 acres, by survey.

EASEMENT:

There is further granted by grantors unto grantees a 12 ft. easement for ingress and egress to the afore-described tract same being more particularly bounded and described as follows:

Beginning on iron pin found, being the Northwest corner of the above mentioned tract, severing the lands of the grantor, N 74-39'-51" W – 15.78 feet; thence, N 06-39'-34" W – 22.85 feet; thence N 02-13'-55" E – 74.16 feet; thence N 04-18'-56" W – 54.54 feet to a point in the Southern boundary line of Charlie Brown Deed Book 91, Page 283; thence, with the line of Brown, N 83-17'-40" E – 12.00 feet to a point in the line of Brown, being a new corner to the lands of the grantor; thence, severing the lands of the grantor, S 04-19'-31" E – 55.73 feet; thence, S 02-13'-55" W – 84.53 feet; thence, S 38-44'-16" E – 20.33 feet to a point in the Northern boundary line of the above mentioned tract, being a new corner to the lands of the grantor; thence, with said tract line S 83-21'-44" W – 12.00 feet to the beginning and containing 0.046 acres, by survey.

Previous and last conveyance being a Deed from Johnny R. Shelton and wife, Leta N. Shelton, to Bobby Brown and wife Sherry Brown, by deed dated December 16, 2005, and of record in the Office of the Clerk of the Clinton County, Kentucky Court in Deed Book 131, Page 198.

The successful bidder or bidders may elect to pay the purchase price in full at the time of the sale or be required to pay twenty (20%) percent of bid purchase price down on the date of the sale and balance of purchase price will be due and payable on or before 30 days from the date of the sale with interest thereon at the rate of 12% per annum; however, the purchaser may pay all or part of the purchase price prior to the maturity with all accrued interest due at the time of the said payment. If the sale be had on credit, the purchaser shall execute and deliver to the order of the Master Commissioner, his or her bond due and payable in 30 days, bearing interest at the legal rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum from date of sale until paid, with good and sufficient surety thereon and said sale shall likewise be secured by a lien upon the said property sold, which shall have the same force and effect of a judgment and said bond with acceptable surety shall be executed immediately after the sale; upon default of the terms of said bond the Master Commissioner shall immediately resell the property on the same terms and conditions set out herein.

The 2014 and subsequent property taxes shall be paid by the Purchaser.
